Terrorists gun down...

On Saturday, terrorists shot dead Majid Ahmad Gojri, a resident of Chattabal Srinagar, at Karan Nagar. Later that night, another civilian Mohammad Shafi Dar, resident of Batamaloo, was shot at and injured at SD Colony Batamaloo. He succumbed to injuries a few hours later.

Supinder Kaur, a Srinagar-based Sikh, and Chand, a Hindu from Jammu, were killed two days after The Resistance Force, a shadow outfit of the banned Lashkar-e-Taiba, claimed responsibility for the deaths of three people on Tuesday.

Makhhan Lal Bindroo, a prominent Kashmiri Pandit and owner of Srinagar's most famous pharmacy, was shot dead at his shop that evening. Minutes later, a chaat' vendor, Virendra Paswan from Bihar, was gunned elsewhere in the city. Almost simultaneously, another civilian, Mohammad Shafi Lone, was killed at Naidkhai in Bandipora.

Three days before that, terrorists shot dead Majid Ahmad Gojri, at Srinagar's Karan Nagar locality. Later that Saturday night, they gunned down Mohammad Shafi Dar at Batmaloo.

For many people in the Valley, the spate of civilian killings -- the worst since Jammu and Kashmir's special status under Article 370 was revoked in August 2019 -- recalled the 1990s when terrorists would pick and choose their targets at whim. This led to the exodus of minorities, particularly Kashmiri Pandits, from the Valley.

"The incidents of targeting civilians in Kashmir since a few days are barbaric. Innocent people who are working for society and have nothing to do with anyone are being targeted. This is an attempt to create an atmosphere of fear and to give it a communal colour so as to damage communal harmony in Kashmir," DGP Singh said.

"We regret the back-to-back attacks in which civilians have been killed. We are working on the previous cases. The Srinagar police has got many clues and we will soon get the people behind such terror and barbaric attacks...", he said.

Describing the killings as a conspiracy to target those who have come here to earn their bread and butter, he expressed the hope that the people of Kashmir would not let the conspiracy succeed.

"We will work together and defeat their purpose," he said.

As he spoke, the buzz of media crews and the sirens of police jeeps that zoomed into the school punctured the stunned silence that had fallen over the staff. His assurances seemed to have little impact on the groups of teachers and others who roamed around, almost aimlessly as it were, trying to come to terms with the events of the morning.

They listened on blankly, as if nothing was registering. Scared of being identified or being caught on camera, some teachers murmured that they were unaware of what happened and rushed out of their classroom only after hearing gunshots.

They refused to give their names and drifted away when questioned further.

The area near the school was cordoned off.

"I wonder where we are heading, asked a teacher in hushed tones.

That was the answer many were seeking.

According to IGP Vijay Kumar, as many as 28 civilians, including seven from minority communities and two non-local Hindus, have been killed by terrorists in Kashmir this year.

"Due to killing of huge numbers of terrorists of all outfits specially their leadership, destruction of their support structures and continuous and effective maintenance of law and order, terrorist handlers across are frustrated and have changed their strategy and started targeting unarmed policemen, innocent civilians, politicians and now innocent civilians from minority communities including women," he said in a statement.

"In all such cases, terrorists have been using pistols. These acts are committed by newly recruited terrorists or those who are about to join terrorist rank. In some cases, OGWs have been found directly involved," he added.

Kumar said police are identifying all such part-time or hybrid terrorists and strictest action will be taken against them.

Will give befitting...

J&K UT. My deepest condolences to the bereaved family, friends and colleagues," he added.

The two teachers were shot dead by terrorists inside their school at Sangam in the Eidgah area of the city on Thursday.

The killing of the teachers took the number of civilians killed in the last five days in the Kashmir Valley to seven, including four from the minorities.

The series of selective killings has created fear among the people especially the minorities and others including the PM Package employees, he said.

'Please watch your...

"Please watch your October, November, December."

While overall COVID-19 positivity across the country gives comfort, Agarwal pointed out that there are still a large number of districts reporting high case positivity.

He said five states -- Mizoram, Kerala, Sikkim, Manipur and Meghalaya -- are reporting a weekly positivity rate of more than five per cent.

Thirty-four districts across nine states and union territories are reporting a weekly positivity rate of more than 10 per cent, while 28 districts across 12 states and UTs are reporting a weekly positivity rate between 5 and 10 per cent, he informed.

Surge in cases globally aggravates the ongoing concern related with COVID-19 management, Agarwal said, adding around 4.54 lakh cases are being reported on an average daily globally.

Stating there has been global evidence of surge followed by unhindered public gatherings at various events in the UK, Russia and the Netherlands, Agarwal advised people to avoid crowded places and unnecessary travel and to stay home, celebrate festivals virtually and explore online modes of shopping.

Sustained efforts by the community is the key for successful pandemic management, he said.

Paul said, "In three months -- October, November and December -- we will take the vaccination forward. This is our aim. We saw that when in other countries...complacency was observed it led to paying a high price."

In the US, still 1,500-2,000 daily cases are being reported, he said.

"If we compare it with our population then it is 300 per million and if it was 333 then it would have been as many as the second peak seen in India. This shows that we cannot take any risk in this delta variant times. If we look at the UK then there are more than 40,000 cases per day and their population is just 7 crore...the infection is spreading at more intensity there than our second wave," Paul said.

Lastly, some states have a 21 per cent positivity rate and 1,000 cases in a small state like Mizoram are worrying, he highlighted.

The tools of tackling it are known -- testing, tracking, treatment and vaccination.

"We are in touch with them to bring the situation under control but it shows that some geographies can be there where behaviour of pandemic is different from that of the rest of the country.

"In Kerala too the positivity (rate) is 13.72 per cent, which is very high and more than 60 per cent cases are coming from there so we are together trying to control the pandemic and there is a need to bring more intensity into it," he said.

The government said that Kerala recorded 50 per cent of the total coronavirus cases in the country last week.

Kerala has over over lakh active cases currently and the figure in four other states is ranging between 10,000 and 50,000.

The government said 71 per cent of India's adult population have received at least one dose of COVID-19 vaccine, while 27 per cent have got both doses.

On Zydrus Cadila's vaccine roll-out, Paul said preparations are going on for it and required training is moving forward at various levels.

"...this vaccine is administered not conventionally using a syringe and a needle but with an applicator and that will be used for the first time in the country and bringing that training to conclusion is a huge task and work in that direction is going on," he said.

Listing its preparations to tackle any surge in coronavirus infections, the government said 8.36 lakh hospital beds are currently available in the country for COVID-19 patients, in addition to nearly one million isolation beds in dedicated care centres.

It said 4.86 oxygen-supported beds and 1.35 lakh ICU beds are also available.

Paul said, "The dynamics of the virus after vaccination and infection which can lead to herd immunity...we do not have a straight formula for that. As one can see, despite the administration of vaccines, cases are being reported and we are still learning. The preparation will be of the level to make us safe. We move with preparation of 4.5 to 5 lakh cases per day surge, but it does not mean that it will happen, should happen or may happen."

Paul further said there is no issue of vaccine availability in the country now.

With 22,431 people testing positive for coronavirus infection in a day, India's total tally of COVID-19 cases rose to 3,38,94,312, according to the Union Health Ministry's data updated on Thursday.

The death toll climbed to 4,49,856 with 318 fresh fatalities, according to the data updated at 8 am.
