Amit Shah greets RSS volunteers on its foundation day

STATE TIMES NEWS

NEW DELHI: Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Saturday greeted members of the RSS on the occasion of its foundation day and said since its inception, the organisation has been doing a remarkable job of protecting Indian culture and inculcating the ideas of patriotism in youth.

The Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) was founded in 1925 by Keshav Baliram Hedgewar in Nagpur on Vijayadashami.

"Heartiest greetings to all the volunteers of Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh on its foundation day. The organisation is a unique symbol of discipline and patriotism. @RSSorg, since its inception, has been doing a remarkable job of protecting Indian culture and inculcating the ideas of patriotism in them," Shah wrote on X.

He said RSS is empowering every section by accelerating the work of social service and through its educational efforts, creating patriots dedicated to the country's welfare.

The home minister also greeted the people of the country on the occasion of Vijayadashami.

In a message, he said Vijayadashami is a symbol of the victory of 'Dharma' over 'Adharma' and truth over falsehood.

"This festival of Vijayadashami inspires everyone to eliminate the evils within themselves and follow the path of 'Dharma' and humanity. May Lord Shri Ram bless everyone. Jai Shri Ram," he said in the message in Hindi.

Vijayadashami marks the end of Durga Puja and commemorates Lord Ram's victory over demon king Ravan.

In a separate message, Shah also paid tributes to BJP leader Rajmata Vijayaraje Scindia on her birth anniversary.

He said she was an epitome of simplicity and her courage and struggle during the Emergency played an important role in the restoration of democracy.

"The country will always remember Rajmata Scindiaji's loyalty towards the country and her work for public welfare," he said.

Scindia, who belonged to the Gwalior royal family, was a BJP vice-president and MP. She was born on October 12, 1919.

UK ex-PM Boris Johnson showers praise on 'change-maker' Modi's 'astral energy'

STATE TIMES NEWS

LONDON: Former British prime minister Boris Johnson is all praise for "change-maker" Prime Minister Narendra Modi in a new memoir that reflects upon his eventful political career and recalls a "curious astral energy" that he felt on his very first meeting with the Indian leader.

'Unleashed', which hit the shelves in the UK this week, devotes a whole chapter to Britain's relationship with India as "a relationship as good as it has ever been". Repeatedly stressing the strong India-UK friendship in the context of the Indo-Pacific, the former prime minister credits himself for setting the course for a "proper free-trade deal" with India thanks to finding "exactly the partner and friend" needed with Modi.

"For some reason, we went down to stand in the dark in the plaza by Tower Bridge, in front of a crowd of his supporters," shares Johnson in the chapter entitled 'Britain and India', referencing his first meeting with Modi during a visit to his City Hall office by the river Thames when he was Mayor of London.

"He raised my arm and chanted something or other in Hindi, and though I couldn't follow it I felt his curious astral energy. I have enjoyed his company ever since - because I reckon he is the change-maker our relationship needs. With Modi, I felt sure, we could not only do a great free-trade deal but also build a long-term partnership, as friends and equals," he writes.

Johnson reveals how a "distinctly snuffy" UK Foreign Office had warned him off meeting the "Hindu nationalist" leader during an earlier mayoral trade delegation to India in 2012, a problem "soon dropped" to pave the way for a relationship that "hit an all-time high".

The 60-year-old politician-author asserts how much he loves India, being a "veteran" of many Indian weddings because his children with Sikh heritage ex-wife Marina Wheeler trace their roots to the country.

While he writes with pride of a similar "Anglo-Indian syncretism" in politics with his diverse Cabinet as PM including many British Indians such as Rishi Sunak and Priti Patel, Johnson laments the slow-paced growth of bilateral trade due to unnecessary trade barriers that leave UK visitors "clinking in with duty-free booze" for Indians starved of Scotch whisky at decent prices.

The "tremendous success" of his visit to India as PM in January 2022 he recalls as a much-needed "morale boost" and "balm for the soul" away from an increasingly belligerent domestic politics that would eventually end in his unceremonious exit from 10 Downing Street just a few months later.

He claims he had also wanted to use the visit to make a "gentle point to Narendra" on the issue of relations with Russia at a "global inflection point" with its conflict with Ukraine.

He writes: "I knew all the history and the sensitivities, the reasons for India's post-war non-alignment with the West, the seemingly unbreakable relationship with Moscow. I understand the Indian dependence - like China's - on Russian hydrocarbons.

"But I wondered if it was not time for a modulation, a rethink... As I was to put it to the Indians, Russian missiles were turning out to be less accurate, statistically, than my first serve at tennis. Did they really want to keep Russia as their main supplier of military hardware?"

It is in this context that in another section of the book, where he showers the late Queen Elizabeth II with effusive praise for her deep personal knowledge of history and history-makers, he references his efforts to get India to take a "tougher line" with Russians.
