■ STATE TIMES NEWS

JAMMU: LG Manoj Sinha Administration needs to urgently adopt measures to protect the J&K's poorest and most vulnerable people if COVID-19 containment and relief measures prove inadequate. Previous lockdowns have already disproportionately hurt marginalized communities due to loss of livelihood and lack of food, shelter, health, and other basic needs. The government does have a responsibility to protect the health and well-being of the population by protecting their livelihood.

This was stated by JKPCC Working President Raman Bhalla after meeting people from different areas facing economic hardships and reacting over Govt's decision to impose lockdown initially from Friday afternoon and then extending it to 9 PM on Friday to Monday morning in a hasty manner said that though lockdown is inevitable to save precious lives but its impact will fall disproportionately on the most vulnerable, people living in poverty, the working poor, women and children, persons with disabilities, and other marginalized groups.

He noted that the pandemic has laid bare challenges such as structural inequalities, inadequate healthcare, and the lack of universal social protection and the heavy price societies are paying as a result.

Economic recovery plans should prioritize at-risk workers, such as those in the informal sector; protect micro, small and medium enterprises, including those owned by women; and involve an expansion of universal social protection, said Bhalla.

He said authorities should recognize that malnourishment and untreated illness will exacerbate problems and should ensure that the most marginalized don't bear an unfair burden from lack of essential supplies.

Bhalla demanded central government to announce a relief package to provide free food and cash transfers to the poor and vulnerable populations, and health insurance for healthcare workers, among other things.

The government should ensure that those at heightened risk, including sanitation workers (safai karamcharis), community health staff (ASHA workers), early childhood caregivers (anganwadi workers), and people such as midday meal workers - often poorly paid public service officials - who are at the front lines during this crisis, are provided protective equipment, medical benefits, and timely wages.

■ STATE TIMES NEWS

WASHINGTON: Marking the exodus of Kashmiri Pandits from the Valley in 1990 due to threats and killings by Pakistan-sponsored terrorists, American actress and singer Mary Millben has said that her prayers are with the community as many continue to mourn the loss of their loved ones, homes and cultural presence.

Every year, displaced Kashmiri Pandits hold several events in different parts of the world to commemorate the exodus of the community from the Kashmir Valley, recognizing the resilience and noble spirit of the community.

In India on Wednesday, they observed January 19 as the 'Holocaust Day' to mark the exodus of their community members from the Valley in 1990 due to threats and killings by Pakistan-sponsored terrorists.

American actress and singer Millben, 39, in a statement posted on Twitter, said that marked the Exodus Day and said that her prayers are with the community.

Religious persecution continues to escalate across the world. Today we remember the horror of Exodus Day - the exile of Kashmiri Pandits due to genocide and ethnic cleansing from Kashmir at the hands of Islamist terrorists. My prayers are with the Kashmiri Pandit community as many continue to mourn the loss of loved ones, homes and cultural presence, Millben said.

As a global citizen and woman of faith, my voice and platform will always stand for you, religious freedom and global policy that protects and preserves the exercising of faith. The persecution of Christians, the rise of antisemitism and hate towards Jews, genocide against Hindus and others continues today. I challenge Americans and global citizens to not grow complacent on these evils, she said.

Over the past couple of years, Millben has become highly popular in India and among Indian-Americans after she sang India's National Anthem and devotional song Om Jai Jagdish Hare!

Millben, who is also known as America's National Anthem Singer, has performed the National Anthem and patriotic music for three consecutive US presidents - George W Bush, Barack Obama and Donald Trump, international royalty and world leaders.

She shares a deep love for and very intimate relationship with India, the Indian-American community and Indian communities across the world.
