MESSAGE

It gives me immense pleasure to learn that the UN General Assembly has designated December 9 as International Anti-Corruption Day. This decision is aimed to raise people's awareness about corruption and the role of the United Nations Convention in combating corruption and promotion of good governance practices.

Corruption is a drag on Socio-Economic growth and also undermines efforts to achieve Sustainable Development Goals. It is important that the rights and responsibilities of every individual stakeholder in tackling corruption, is highlighted - including Public & Private Sectors, Law enforcement agencies, Civil society organizations, Academia, Media and Youth.

Corruption inflicts adverse effects on social equality. It creates social uncertainty and reduces investment meant for social protection and public service. Prevention is the key tool in the fight against corruption.

New technologies and social media facilitate reporting of corruption and give access to official information. Information and communications technology can help mobilise people against corruption. This can help to monitor the efficiency and integrity of social services and make financial information more transparent.

On this occasion, I urge all citizens to take pledge for zero tolerance to corruption and be #UnitedAgainstCorruption.

MESSAGE

Anti Corruption Day is celebrated all across the globe. It is not new fact that corruption affects all areas of society. Preventing corruption unlocks progress towards the Sustainable Development Goals, helps to create jobs, achieve gender equality and secures wider access to essential services such as healthcare and education.

The 2022 International Anti-Corruption Day seeks to highlight the rights and responsibilities of everyone - including States, Government officials, civil servants, law enforcement officers, media representatives, the private sector, civil society, academia, the public and youth - in tackling corruption. Every single person has a role to play to prevent and counter corruption, in order to promote resilience and integrity at all levels of society. Corruption leads to depletion of national wealth and is responsible for conversion of Public wealth to private and personal property, inflation and imbalanced economic development.

We all must unite and share responsibilities to promote resilience and integrity at all levels of society. The leaders of all segments of society have a major role to play in strengthening measure and policies to bring about a culture of integrity across the sectors.

I urge all citizens to take pledge for zero tolerance against corruption.

MESSAGE

It is pleasure to learn that Anti Corruption Day is celebrated across the globe on 9th December. To achieve an equitable, inclusive and more prosperous future for all, we must foster a culture of integrity, transparency, accountability and good governance.

The UN's Anti-Corruption Day is observed each year to educate the public on the issue of corruption, to mobilize organizations and governments to work together to help eradicate it, and to highlight successful anti corruption efforts and initiatives. As noted by the UN, corruption is a complex political, social, and economic phenomenon that is not unique to any single country or government.

The corruption can undermine social and economic development in all societies. No country, region or community is immune from corruption.

On this International Anti-Corruption Day, I urge all members of civil society to take a collective stand against this complex social, political and economic disease that affects all and say we are #UnitedAgainstCorruption.

MESSAGE

The 2022 International Anti-Corruption Day seeks to highlight the rights and responsibilities of everyone - including States, Government officials, civil servants, law enforcement officers, media representatives, the private sector, civil society, academia, the public and youth - in tackling corruption.

Corruption has many dimensions affecting political, economic and the social environment of all countries. It reduces accountability and distorts representation in policy making. It undermines the legitimacy of government and such democratic values as trust and tolerance.

In recent years, technology has become one of the greatest allies for preventing and tackling corruption. Digitalization and digital transformations have advanced and transformed the public sector tremendously, with the enormous potential and wide-ranging benefits of improving the efficiency and effectiveness in public administration and service delivery, as well as enhancing transparency, accountability, accessibility and citizen participation. Technology and anti-corruption measures have a mutually reinforcing relationship.

To protect your rights, you need to be aware of the role you play and responsibilities you have in the fight against corruption. We are on forefront 'of ensuring a world #UnitedAgainstCorruption.
