Participating teams responded to the problem statement and queries in a professional manner & suggested a number of solutions to deal with the challenge of eve-teasing effectively. They suggested how to reach out to vulnerable groups in such areas where there is less presence of Police. How to build confidence among common masses so that in case of occurrence of any untoward happening, the victim report the crime so that criminals are booked under law and justice delivered to the aggrieved. They also laid thrust on the use of technology as effective tool for prevention of even-teasing. The participants suggested as to how to counter the menace of exploitation of women being telecast in films, TV serials and social media which develops a tendency among the viewers particularly the youth to behave like that. They also gave suggestions for creating awareness to make the fight against eve teasing a mass mission. Mohan Lal, JKPS, SSP, Dy. Director (Indoor/Trg.) and Sukhvir Singh, DySP, Assistant Director (Admn.) functioned as the professional experts and Judges during the Hackathon. They monitored the performance of the teams and gave performance points to them.

The winner team who secured 1st, 2nd and 3rd positions were awarded commendation certificate class -1 alongwith a cash reward of Rs.3000, Rs.2000 & Rs.1000 respectively, whereas the Runner-up teams were awarded participation certificates. Suraj Singh, DySP and Insp. (S) Ashok Kumar of Police Academy co-ordinated and conducted the Hackathon successfully. About 200 trainees and staff members of the Academy witnessed the Hackathon.

Mohan Lal, SSP also delivered inaugural address and highlighted importance of the Hackathons. In future, such hackathon are going to be held on periodical basis to address various routine problems being faced by police professionals to innovate and find out solutions thereto.
