

Draupadi Murmu as President of India is victory of marginalized: Rana

STATE TIMES NEWS

JAMMU: Amid euphoric celebrations by cross section of people, predominantly Scheduled Tribe Gujjars and Bakarwals, on election of Draupadi Murmu as the first Adivasi women President of India, senior BJP leader Devender Singh Rana on Thursday termed the day as historic and grand victory for marginalized Indians.

"The pattern of voting by the electoral college, rising above the party politics speaks about the depth of political sagacity of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the flag bearer of the BJP's legacy of standing for poor, under-privileged, marginalized and women", Rana said as the drum beaters kept rejoicing over the updates from the national capital.

Rana said the victory of Draupadi Murmu is a poser for the opposition that touched lowest depths during the presidential campaign, almost calling names and showing insensitivity to dignity of women and self-esteem of the marginalized especially the Adivasis, Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe segments of the society. It is a turning point in India's odyssey towards progress under the theme of Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas, Sabka Vishwas, Sabka Priyas. The Prime Minister has demonstrated his commitment towards the underprivileged. That the members of the opposition re-jected the myopic and anti-Adivasi diktat of their respective parties while easting their votes for the new President as per their conscience holds promise for Indians thinking as nation first, he said, adding that this has made the petty thinking leaders more uncomfortable.

Devender Rana said the victory of Draupadi Murmu reflects the increased presence of BJP at the grassroots level, especially the marginalized areas, hitherto unrepresented and neglected by the dynasts who exploited every section of Indians for over six decades. He said the victory also unfolds the reality of the BJP representing oppressed classes with a sincerity of purpose and their immense faith in the party leadership.

Rana said the proud residents of Jammu and Kashmir join the compatriots in celebrating the greatest event of Indian history. However, he lamented that as the nation was reeling under the victory mood, the Congress workers indulged in violence and unruly protests in various parts of the country, apparently to celebrate the corruption. For a change, it would have been a pleasant

Pride for India to have tribal woman as President: Rekha

STATE TIMES NEWS

JAMMU: With 11 women ministers in his cabinet and now a tribal woman as President, speaks that Narendra Modi is concerned for women empowerment in the country. None from among his predecessors did so much for them.

This was stated by Rekha Mahajan, Secretary, J&K BJP, who was of the view that for the first time in the history of India a grassroots level tribal woman leader is going to head the highest office of the country.

Nomination of Draupadi Murmu as the Presidential candidate by the NDA is a step in the right direction when it comes to recognizing women empowerment. The same NDA govt, in 2015, had appointed Murmu as the first ever woman Governor of Jharkhand.

Rekha Mahajan said that Prime Minister Narendra Modi, by first supporting Ram Nath Kovind and now Draupadi Murmu, has sent out a loud and clear message that New India will be all inclusive and won't discriminate against Dalits or Tribals, who were oppressed for decades under successive Congress regimes.

She said that Prime Minister Modi's endorsement of Murmu, is, in fact, a vindication of the government's tribal outreach and his commitment to giving greater representation to women, especially those from erstwhile, neglected and remote parts of the country.

The Presidential candidate of NDA has many firsts to her credit. She is going to be the first tribal President of India and the first female leader from the East to hold the highest office of the President of India, only second female President of India after Pratibha Devi Singh Patil, Rekha said.

Rekha Mahajan said that while it is a matter of pride for the people of the country, the women in particular are feeling honoured.

Sikh organisation in J&K criticises Delimitation Commission

STATE TIMES NEWS

SRINAGAR: A Sikh organisation in Kashmir on Thursday criticised the Delimitation Commission for not providing any political representation to the community by way of reservation of assembly seats. The All Parties Sikh Coordination Committee (APSCC) also appealed to the Members of Parliament to listen to their conscience and oppose the reservation for the members of Kashmiri Pandit community which is based on pure religious lines.

The delimitation commission has two important jobs -- to give representation based on geography and population. It is mandatory and they cannot ignore that," APSCC chairman Jagmohan Singh Raina told reporters here. "But, we have not been given any representation. The forthcoming (assembly) elections will be meaningless if the Sikh community is not given any political representation, he said.

Raina said the delimitation commission bill, which has been presented in Parliament where it needs to be passed, proposes reservation for Kashmiri Pandits only as a minority, even as Sikhs also constitute a good population in Jammu and Kashmir. The APSCC chairman appealed to all the MPs to listen to their conscience and oppose the reservation for the members of Kashmiri Pandit community that is based on pure religious lines.

If the BJP government does not support us, how will Sikhs support it, he added.

Technology installed to convert sea water into drinking water: Dr Jitendra

STATE TIMES NEWS

NEW DELHI: Union Minister, Dr Jitendra Singh on Thursday informed the Rajya Sabha that a new technology has been installed to convert the saline/saltish sea water into drinking water.

The Minister stated that the National Institute of Ocean Technology (NIOT) Chennai, an autonomous institute under the Ministry of Earth Sciences, has developed a Low Temperature Thermal Desalination (LTTD) technology which takes away the salt or saline water and converts it into potable water.

The Minister informed that the Ministry of Earth Sciences (MoES) through its autonomous Institute National Institute of Ocean Technology (NIOT) has developed Low Temperature Thermal Desalination (LTTD) technology for conversion of sea water to potable water and this has been successfully demonstrated in the Lakshadweep islands.

Pertinent to mention that in the coastal regions as well as towns and villages located along the sea shore, the water is available in plenty but it is not potable and cannot be used for drinking. The reason for this is that sea water is often rich in its content of salt and other minerals. As a result of this, it may not be potable and also not considered appropriate to be used as drinking water, which could also be compatible with good health.

Therefore, there has always been constant research to find means of converting sea water into potable water which could be suitable for drinking, cooking and other personal use.

The Desalination Plant is based on Low Temperature Thermal Desalination (LTTD) plants at Amin, Androth, Chetlet, Kadmat, Kalpeni and Kiltan with a capacity of 1.5 lakhs litres / day.

As per the Minister's reply, the LTTD technology is found suitable for Lakshadweep islands where the required temperature difference of about 15 °C between sea surface water and deep sea water is found in the vicinity of Lakshadweep coasts only as of now. The cost of desalination plant depends on a number of factors inter alia which includes technology used and location of plant. The total cost of the six LTTD plants in Lakshadweep islands is Rs. 187.5 cr. No., Sir. MoES has not taken any foreign assistance for setting up desalination plants in Lakshadweep Islands.

Dr Jitendra further elaborated that the capacity of each of these LTTD plants is 1 Lakh litre of potable water per day. Based on the success of these plants, the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) through Union Territory (UT) Lakshadweep has entrusted the work of establishing 6 more LTTD plants at Amin, Androth, Chetlet, Kadmat, Kalpeni and Kiltan with a capacity of 1.5 lakhs litres / day.
