Kavinder slams Mehbooba over remark against Ram Nath Kovind; says PDP Chief has lost mind tion parties, and such b a b y i s h statements against the highest constitutional post is therefore unacceptable.

He said after the BJP government led by PM Modi has stopped Hawala transactions from Pakistan, Mehbooba and her ilk have gone fidgety and such immature statements are merely the after effects of the strict actions taken by the government.

The former Deputy Chief Minister said that Mehbooba has turned restless because shops of PDP and that of other political parties which used to indulge in blackmailing tactics during Congress' regimes had been shut and these so-called people's representatives of Kashmir have lost relevance in political, social and even local arenas.

"This is the main reason for her to speak out of context and give unwarranted statements", he said, adding that the PDP leader should apologize for her irresponsible statement as the President's coveted post is not political rather it is the supreme post and challenging it in such a cheap manner is 'disgusting'.

Segregation of Solid Waste Material: More efforts required for making Srinagar city garbage-free

■ SHAKEELA ANDRABI

SRINAGAR: Authorities have failed to start segregation of solid waste material at source in Srinagar, affecting scientific disposal of garbage at Achan dumping site, thereby resulting in spread of foul smell in vicinity. People are facing numerous troubles due to stench, especially in morning hours, when hundreds of youth, children and senior citizens go out for a walk.

Therefore, both sides should take to the dialogue route and end the ongoing stalemate, the former minister added.

He hoped that the Lieutenant Governor to engage the striking lawyers in a meaningful dialogue process so that a mutually agreed via media is found to the issue. He also sought adequate funds for the construction of court complexes in the capital city and other areas in the Jammu division Adhcoism and delaying tactics won't help in mitigating the problems faced by the lawyers.

"This will not only ease the judicial dispensation but will be beneficial for both the lawyers and the litigant public", Sadhotra said in a statement issued here this afternoon.

He hoped that the Lieutenant Governor to engage the striking lawyers in a meaningful dialogue process so that a mutually agreed via media is found to the issue. He also sought adequate funds for the construction of court complexes in the capital city and other areas in the Jammu division Adhcoism and delaying tactics won't help in mitigating the problems faced by the lawyers.

Therefore, both sides should take to the dialogue route and end the ongoing stalemate, the former minister added.

According to official data, Srinagar City produces more than 400 metric tons of waste every day. Actually the real problem is not waste but it is its poor management.

The field staff of Srinagar Municipal Corporation (SMC) has also failed to convey to people the importance of separation of solid waste material. As SMC is still collecting mixed waste from areas, there are numerous complaints that SMC vehicles arrive late in several areas, causing problems for people. Under SWMR, each house has to keep two separate dustbins, one for biodegradable and another for non-biodegradable waste but non-implementation of the rule has multiplied problems of garbage dumping, processing and its disposal.

However, SMC Commissioner Athar Aamir

had numerous times made commitment that SMC is taking various measures to implement SWMR in letter & spirit and recently it started door to door garbage collection in Srinagar, but the real problem is still unattended. There is need to add more vehicles in fleet of SMC for transportation of garbage besides taking several other measures to make Srinagar city garbage and stench-free.

More we follow COVID Appropriate Behaviour, more we help breaking chain of virus transmission: Dr Kirti Bushan

■ MALU SHARMA

JAMMU: The number of daily positive cases as well as active cases has been on the rise in Jammu and Kashmir for the past two weeks. With the change in weather and casual approach of people, COVID cases are again on rise. Whether there is a wave or not, doctors say the pandemic is still on and Covid is out there-evolving, infecting and claiming lives. STATE TIMES interacted with Dr Kirti Bushan, MS CD Hospital, Jammu in this regard. Dr Bushan reiterated that we need to be keeping a closer eye on the rate of increase in illness and hospitalisations, rather than infections, which, they say, are bound to continue to spike and dip in the foreseeable future. According to Dr Kirti Bushan the present situation resembles the time before the second wave hit the country. Looking around us, the feeling one gets is that we have overcome COVID-19 pandemic and the public at large has lowered the guard. It resembles the situation before the second wave hit India.

While talking to STATE TIMES, Dr Kirti Sharma said, "Festive and wedding seasons are the times when we need to adhere to the Covid guidelines. Our negligence can lead to a grave situation. We have already seen how our ignorance towards following the Covid-19 guidelines had led to the deadly second wave. So, in the times of celebration too, we need to follow COVID appropriate behaviours like wearing masks and using sanitiser so that we do not expose ourselves to the infection. Dr Sharma further added, "Omicron variants haven't increased deaths. Instead, deaths have been reported in those cases that have co-morbidities. We should continuously follow the golden principle that has protected us from COVID-19. We must wear a mask, adopt COVID-19 appropriate behaviour; maintain social distancing and get vaccinated on priority."

"Moreover, it is important that people should complete their vaccination. We should also consider booster additional dose of vaccine for people at highest risk. It is also very important to get children vaccinated," says Dr Kirti Bushan. In his message, Dr Bushan said, "The more we follow COVID Appropriate Behaviour, the more we help break the chain of COVID-19 transmission. It is the primary responsibility of everyone to take precautions rather than taking risk of getting infected with the virus by not following CAB."

Prominent among those present on the occasion include those cases that have co-morbidities. We should continuously follow the golden principle that has protected us from COVID-19. We must wear a mask, adopt COVID-19 appropriate behaviour; maintain social distancing and get vaccinated on priority."
