

VC SKUAST-J interacts with Vet faculty, students

STATE TIMES NEWS

JAMMU: Dr. B. N. Tripathi, Vice-Chancellor, SKUAST-Jammu on Wednesday visited and interacted with the Faculty members and students of Veterinary Sciences and Animal Husbandry at R.S. Pura campus of SKUAST-Jammu.

In his maiden address to the Vet Faculty members and students, he enlightened the gathering about the tremendous economic growth and structural changes of India in the Agriculture and livestock sector since independence. He talked about India's progressive journey from food deficit to food surplus and milk deficit to milk surplus country. He stressed on the vital role which the livestock sector plays in the national economy and in the socio-economic development of the country. He exhorted faculty and students of Veterinary sciences to work for the betterment of the farming community.

VC, SKUAST-J, Dr. B. N. Tripathi interacting with faculty members and students of Veterinary Sciences at RS Pura on Wednesday.

Further, Dr. Tripathi enshrined his vision and roadmap to develop Veterinary faculty of SKUAST-Jammu at par with the prestigious veterinary institutes of India. He underlined that India is equipped with institutions, human resources, policy frameworks and infrastructure which would be the driving force for the Animal Husbandry sector during the Amrit Kaal. He stressed the importance of self-reliance, referring to the concept of "Atmanirbhar Bharat" (self-reliant India). He focused on improving the research ecosystem of the university by initiating collaborative efforts among state agriculture universities, ICAR institutes as well as international institutions. He emphasized the need to continuously explore ways to improve the quality of education, equip the students with the necessary skills for their future endeavours.

He emphasized the need to enhance resources and equip laboratories with modern machines to meet the growing demands of the evolving research and educational landscape. He stressed the importance of keeping pace with advancements and nurturing innovative thinking among students. He advised teachers to encourage students to explore entrepreneurship and thereby highlight the need for students to be self-reliant and not solely depend on government jobs. He also emphasized the importance of enhancing their skills and leveraging entrepreneurial opportunities to contribute to the growth of the region. He urged the veterinary students to become job generators rather than job seekers.

Dr. Tripathi concluded his interaction by taking queries and suggestions from the faculty members and students in an extensive manner and assured them of providing adequate facilities to ensure that teaching, research and wellbeing thrive well without hindrance.

Later, he visited all the divisions of the faculty to review their functioning. At the outset Dr. M.S Bhadwal, Dean FV.Sc & A.H, welcomed the Vice-Chancellor for his maiden interaction with the faculty and students after assuming his charge as the VC of SKUAST-J.
