images, videos, and data received from different sources on social media or other means. Participants were equipped with different tools and methodologies to deal with dis/misinformation in all its forms. Special attention was given to the different tools that journalists can use to verify different forms of information such as text, images, videos websites, locations, and social media accounts, among others.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Rakesh Goswami said misinformation, and disinformation are the bane of our society and have a huge cost.

"Technology has made it easier to create compelling, believable fake images. Posts that use text and visuals are more believed than textual disinformation. For the uninitiated, distinguishing between original and manipulated images is difficult. It is very important for all of us to learn about the tools and techniques of fact-checking", he said. He further said that in the era of technology, it has become more important than ever for journalists to provide the public with accurate information, considering the flood of false information on different platforms of social media. Earlier two former presidents of the Press Club of Chub Manu Shrivatsa and Ashwani Kumar welcomed Dr. Rakesh Goswami by presenting him with bouquets. Columnist and writer Sunny Dua, in his vote of thanks, said that journalists must be equipped with skills, knowledge, and tools in fact-checking. Therefore, there is no better time than now, to hold such training programmes.

Vice-president of Press Club Zorawar Singh Janwal, secretary general Dinesh Manhotra, treasurer Channi Anand, Nishikant Khajuria, Kunal Shrivatsa, Vishal Bharati, Dinesh Mahajan, Govind Chouhan, Ajay Menia and Deepak Khajuria (all executive members of PCJ) were present in the training programme.
